7. Confidentiality

8. Termination

Either Party may terminate this Agreement by giving written notice under the following conditions:

1. Client-Initiated Termination

- If the Client chooses to terminate for reasons unrelated to the Developer's performance, the initial deposit is non-refundable, and the Client must pay for all work completed up to the termination date.
- If the Client terminates because the Developer has failed to deliver within the agreed timeline in Clause 2, and such delay is solely the fault of the Developer (not caused by late content, feedback, or approvals from the Client), the Client may terminate and receive a refund for any payments made for work not yet delivered.

2. Developer-Initiated Termination

- The Developer may terminate if the Client repeatedly fails to pay agreed installments, withholds necessary content or feedback, expands the project scope without agreement, or engages in abusive or unprofessional conduct.

In such cases, the initial deposit remains non-refundable, and the Client will pay for all work completed up to termination.

- If the Developer terminates without cause, any payments received for undelivered work will be refunded to the Client.

3. Shared Understanding

- Both Parties agree that if the client delays in providing content, feedback or approvals, the project timeline will be extended. These delays will not be counted as the developer's fault, and the developer cannot be held responsible or blamed for them. Termination on the basis of delay will not apply in such cases.
- Before either Party proceeds with termination, they agree to make reasonable efforts to resolve disputes through discussion or mediation.
